Mini Case Challenge

In general, it's never ok to give your pets alcohol. Except in this one instance when liquor just might save their life. What is the condition you're trying to treat and how does alcohol help? Bonus points: What’s the non-boozy gold standard tx?

What the deuce is that?
These critters give some people the 'nopes'
They have only one working lung and neither lymph nodes nor a diaphragm. Their feces often contain a white cap of urea, which they pass through a cloaca. They are viewed as both a symbol of evil and of healing. Fitting for March, St. Patrick is credited with driving them out of Ireland. Their jaws have extra mobility – due to an unfused mandibular symphysis.

Answers:
4 - Methylpyrazole is preferred because it does not get your pet drunk.

It’s called the TP, why’s it not in the stalls?
Traditionally this newsletter has been hung in the bathrooms. Unfortunately CSU Facilities recently revised their policy on flyers and banned posting anything except on designated bulletin boards. Turns out stalls don’t count 😒

21 DAYS THE HAPPINESS REVOLUTION

A HUGE thank you to everyone who worked tirelessly to make CSU and SCAVMA’s first ever 21 Days of Happiness an incredible success!

The Stats:
- 58 activities attended by veterinary students, faculty, and members of the community
- Opening gala with fabulous ignite talks
- 3 nights of dog agility taught by a professional agility trainer, with over 50 attendees
- 9 group runs, 9 akido classes, and 3 hikes
- 6 yoga classes with 46 total attendees
- Home brewing, cupcakes, and cheese tasting
- Ice skating, bowling, and rock climbing
- Book club, board games and video games
- Pottery, music, painting, and art shows
- Salsa, line dancing and more salsa
- Dog park dates and puppy socialization

The TP keeps students up-to-date on SCAVMA/PVM activities and opportunities both at CSU and nationally. Have info for our paper? We want to hear from you! Contact Samy Lyons, SCAVMA Class of 2016 Rep: samanthe.lyons@gmail.com
