Laparoscopic ovariectomy is rapidly becoming the state of the art method for sterilization of dogs and cats. This course will review the surgical technique and also consider the efficacy. Each participant will then perform an ovariectomy on a dog that will be returned to the local animal shelter for adoption. Participants will perform the surgery using the Tyco LigaSure® coagulation system. Take this procedure back to your practice. 4 hours of CE and technicians are invited to observe in the lab.

This lab will be taking place at the James Voss Veterinary Teaching Hospital, 300 West Drake, Fort Collins, CO 80523.
