COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE
AND BIOMEDICAL SCIENCES

MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

Dear Friends,

This certainly is an interesting time to be at the College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences at Colorado State University. We face as a college, university and nation numerous financial challenges as a result of the global recession. Concurrently, our nation is expanding its support of science as well as its commitment to higher education. We are on the cusp of a new age of investment in renewable energy, biomedical discoveries, and the pragmatic use of science to inform political decisions.

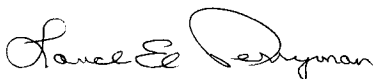

Our three missions in research, education and outreach are at the forefront of these new efforts. Comprehensive programs in infectious disease, radiation oncology, toxicology and environmental health, orthopedics, diagnostics, neurosciences, reproduction and more have generated the largest dollar amount of federal research funding of any college of veterinary medicine in the United States. Of course, at the heart of our mission are our 1,400 students spread throughout 11 graduate degree programs, the professional veterinary medical program, three combined-degree graduate programs, and three undergraduate majors in Biomedical Sciences, Environmental Health and Microbiology.

We honor these students today at the Scholarship and Awards Luncheon. We also recognize you, the donors, each of whom has made these generous scholarships possible. Even in financially uncertain times, your support of our students has been unwavering and for that we are deeply appreciative. For many of our students, scholarships mean the difference between being in school and being shut out by a lack of funds. Scholarships also help us compete for the best and brightest, raising the level of excellence throughout the College. As our nation reinvests in science, so must we invest in our students -- the future leaders of our investigative laboratories, our public health specialists, veterinarians, diagnosticians and perhaps even a future Nobel Prize recipient.

In the 2008-2009 academic year, the College distributed 390 scholarships and awards, with a total dollar amount of $1,463,158. I'd like to give special recognition to our new scholarships. Recently endowed awards include the Carol B. Oakes Memorial Scholarship, Louis Goelz Memorial Scholarship, Thunderhead Food Animal Scholarship, and the John Veitch Memorial Scholarship. The DVM Class of 1960 Scholarship is a new pending endowment. New annual scholarships are the DVM Class of 2009 Scholarship, DVM Class of 1999 Scholarship, and DVM Class of 1984 Scholarship.

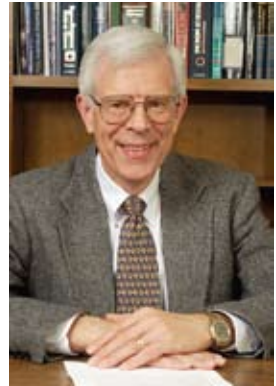

We thank you, and our students thank you, for your support of the College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences and our scholarship program.

Best regards,

Lance E. Perryman, D.V.M., Ph.D.

Dean, College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences

SCHOLARSHIP OPPORTUNITIES IN THE COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE AND BIOMEDICAL SCIENCES

Private scholarship support is a priority of the College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences. This support comes from alumni, friends, corporations, foundations, organizations, and associations. Scholarship donors believe in the mission of the College, and want to help our students realize their educational dreams.

Types of Scholarship Funds

ENDOWMENT FUND: When a true endowment fund is established, a perpetual source of funding is created for scholarship use. The principal of the endowment remains unspent. An annual award from the earned income is used to support a student's education. A minimum gift or combination of gifts totaling $25,000 will establish a named scholarship.

PENDING ENDOWMENT FUND: Pending endowment funds are established with the intention that they will eventually become true endowment funds when gifts total $25,000 for a named scholarship for restricted use. A fund may be a pending endowment for a period not to exceed five years, with all earnings to be re-invested during the five-year period. If the minimum total is not accumulated through gifts and interest earnings within five years, it becomes an expendable fund.

EXPENDABLE FUND: Expendable funds are used to create annual scholarships and fellowships. A minimum gift of $1,000 opens a named scholarship expendable fund. Scholarship awards are made from the fund as long as funds exist in the account.

FUND AGREEMENTS: Scholarship fund agreements clarify the use, purpose, handling, and distribution of the monies within the account. The College's Development Director works with each scholarship donor to draft the written agreements according to the donor's wishes to establish the criteria for the fund.

The College Scholarship and Award Committee selects appropriate award recipients in accordance with the donor's intent for scholarship use. Criteria include: College standing (undergraduate, graduate, professional veterinary medical student); class year; scholastic achievement; educational discipline and/or interest area; financial need; career goals; and residency by state.

Stewardship of Scholarships

Throughout the academic year, the College communicates with scholarship donors about the scholarship fund balances, available award amounts, scholarship selection process, scholarship recipients, and other information about the College and activities of interest to scholarship donors.

Ways of Funding Scholarships

Investment in a scholarship can be made in a variety of ways. These methods include: gifts of cash, gifts of stocks and securities, gifts of real estate, and planned gifts in the form of a bequest, charitable gift annuity, or trust.

The Colorado State University Foundation is a separate nonprofit organization that acts as the central repository and steward of all charitable contributions for the College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences and Colorado State University.

The mission of the Foundation, in cooperation with the College Development Office, is to support the goals of the College by receiving, managing, and investing philanthropic gifts for the purposes designated by donors. Endowment earnings and expendable gifts to the College support scholarships and fellowships and a variety of College teaching, research and outreach programs.

The College Development Office staff is pleased to assist donors and their financial and legal advisors in selecting the giving option that best suits the financial and philanthropic goals of donors.
